

Index

- Black Hawk
 Americans distrusted by,
 American settlers blame troubles on,
 extermination, moral logic of,
- fear
 and rage, in Jacksonian America, Bad Axe and,
 spread of,
- Indian
 as “child of impulse and racially defective,” dehumanization and demonizing of,
 desire to annihilate,
 as “fallen children of nature,”
 light and dark sides of,
 paradox of,
 scapegoating of,
 shedding of blood of, as consecration,
 as vanishing race,
- “Indian Hater, The,”
- Indian hating
 “metaphysics” of,
- Jackson, Andrew
 Black Hawk meets,
 Indian removal policy and,
- land
 identity and,
 right of white men to possess Indian,
- mutilations of bodies,
- “noble savage” image of Indian,
- “other”
 American lack of regard for rights of,
 fear of, and white identity, Indian as,
 warfare’s clarification of, for Sauk,
- paternalism,
- Rock Island,
 beauty of,
 whites on,
- Sauk
 extermination of, called for,
 land of, taken in treaty of 1832,
 raids by,
 springtime return to Saukenuk, as homecoming for dead,
 traditional way of life declines,
 ways of war,
- Saukenuk
 beauty and importance of,
 return of 1830 to,
 return of 1831 to, and forced to leave,
 return of 1832 to,
 white settlers invade and Sauk urged to abandon,
- self
 fears of loss of,
- United States
 as “imagined community”
- vengeance,
- violence, glorification of,
- westward migration,
 guilt over,
 identity and,
- whites. See also identity, American national gender and racial insecurities of,
 guilt and,
 triumph over wild country by,
- wilderness
 as sacred space,
 fear of being absorbed by,

Eric Thompson was raised in Iowa and studied journalism at Pacific Lutheran University. He currently lives in Roanoke, VA, where he is an MFA candidate at Hollins University. His poetry is forthcoming from Shadow Road Quarterly and his fiction has appeared in Word Riot.